BUY WAR BONDS

THE GLORIOUS FOURTH

"And for the support of this Declaration . . . we mutually pledge to each other our Lives, our Fortunes, and our sacred Honor." These are the words of the Declaration of Independence which we hear all too infrequently, but which eloquently reveal the stark dangers that confronted the signers of that daring document.

After more than a century and a half since that historic date we are inclined to think of it as a somewhat glamorous occasion. But actually those men were face to face with the cold stare of death. And they knew it. But knowing it did not deter them from taking their bold step toward independence. "Liberty or death" was not a mere slogan with them, but an expression of what they felt in their hearts.

Realizing these facts, the Fourth of July must mean infinitely more to us than an occasion for picnics and parades, speeches and band-playing. While these activities have long been a part of our observance of the day, we must not allow the real meaning of our Independence Day to be lost in the ceremonies and functions that are held. The war worker who stays on the job on this holiday is doing more to really celebrate it than anything else he might do.

In 1776 we fought to establish true liberty here on the American continent. Today we and the other United Nations are fighting to establish and preserve liberty all over the world.

The Glorious Fourth of 1776 remains the Glorious Fourth of 1944, as America honors by work, word, and fighting deeds, the self-same cause of Freedom which gave this nation its birth.

THE AMERICA THEY KNOW

The first major crisis of the invasion is over. We have gained a firm foothold on the soil of France. The road ahead is still a hard one, but the big nightmare of the war is behind us.

Now, in looking back, we can better realize just how much of a nightmare the anticipation of D-day really was. The uncertainties involved in the adventure, together with the endless variety and fantastic quantities of equipment and supplies needed were staggering to the imagination.

Many of us wondered in the long months before June 6, as the ceaseless stream of supplies flowed into Britain, how we would have fared in this world struggle if, before the war, we in America had not developed the capacity for such enormous production. Fortunately for ourselves, and the civilized world, we did have this capacity.

Before Pearl Harbor some people said that American business had grown too big. But when war came—when the chips were down—it was by no means too big. Mass production and distribution are helping win the war. They will help win the peace in making possible ever higher living standards.

Large-scale enterprise is a definite part of the American way of life. Some of the Washington "wonder boys" are bent on breaking it up along with the general revamping of the nation which will better suit their tastes. But we won't improve our standard of living by dismantling what has already proved to be a highly successful economic system.

There is always room for improvement—yes! But improvement should come through refinements in our present system, not by attempting to throw out the entire machinery for something new and untried.

Our fighting men have repeatedly declared they want to come back to the America they know. Why? Because, after seeing other nations all over the globe, they realize that, with all its faults, the America they know is still the grandest place on earth in which to live and work.

A PERSONAL RESPONSIBILITY

Back in the days when the world was at peace, it was only a matter of a few hours and a few dollars to travel from the English coast to France. But war changes things. It took the Allied armies several years and many billions of dollars to make the trip successfully.

This reminds us that the war has already consumed a great deal of time and money, and may require a great deal more of both before it is over. Every American is, or should be, well aware by this time that the more War Bonds he buys the sooner he can win, and the lower the ultimate cost not only in money, but in lives.

Actual figures for War Bonds sold in California since 1940 are not available, but some indication of the volume is reflected in the fact that the State's largest bank which serves over 300 communities from Calexico to Crescent City has sold over $1,100,000,000 to the public.

This remarkable record is a combination of enthusiastic salesmanship by the staff of that bank and the realization by Californians of their responsibility to buy War Bonds. But records cannot be rested upon. Rather they must, and will, be used as the basis of further achievement.

We may be inclined at times to think of War Bond buying solely as a patriotic duty. But it is something else as well. It is a means of guaranteeing for ourselves a better future and a better education for our children. Every Bond is a stone in the wall we are building against runaway inflation. We can't build that wall too high.

The Fifth War Loan drive is your personal responsibility. Remember, the bonds you are "going to buy" will not help at all. Only the bonds actually bought—and held—will count toward final victory.

Delinquency Deterrent

This is the season when Scouting enthusiasts are knee-deep in summer camp plans, which, under expert, understanding adult guidance, will provide thousands of youngsters their only real outing this year. Actually the summer camp program will provide much more than that.

With juvenile delinquency figures climbing to heartbreaking totals under the impetus of wartime dislocations, the character building aspects of Scouting offer certain aid in the right direction.

Any boy or girl who misses the fun of campcraft, hiking, nature study, camp cooking, camp sports, dramatics and games with play-fellows of an age, misses a lot of jolly things that belong to youth. But any youngster who fails to experience the community life, the sharing of both tasks and fun, the comradeships of Scout camping, misses, too, an important and lasting stimulus toward good citizenship.

As builders of well balanced human beings and as deterrents to juvenile delinquency, the summer Scout camps must be considered a highly helpful factor in tapering down those alarming delinquency figures now worrying parents and juvenile authorities throughout the country.

KID SALVAGE

READING & WRITING

BY Edwin Seaver AND Robin McKoun

It is often very hard for grown-ups to understand what goes on in the minds of children—our memories are short perhaps. One man who has not forgotten is Marquis W. Childs, whose new novel, "The Cabin," shows unusual insight into the mysteries of childhood.

Mr. Childs hitherto has been best known as a newspaperman and a political writer, author of "Sweden, the Middle Way," "This Is Your War," and "I Write from Washington." "The Cabin," his second novel, definitely establishes him as an important fiction writer.

This is the story of three weeks in the life of thirteen-year-old Rob Dennett, three weeks which he spent on his grandfather's farm. His grandmother is a tyrannical, hypochondriac woman, cloaking her shrewishness when necessary beneath a saccharine sweetness. His grandfather, a pathetic creature, is still fighting, vainly, after a lifetime of failure, against his wife's domination.

The heroine of this story, a very real heroine even though she wears faded patched petticoats and has the face of an old witch, is Rob's spinster Aunt Stella, whose own life has been wrecked by her mother, but who is fanatically resolved that the same thing won't happen to the boys. By the end of the story, when she dies as inarticulately as she lived, you are made aware that it is she who has steered Rob from danger and that it is she who has opened for him the door leading to normal and vital manhood.

Maria Manning, who for over fifty years has conducted an advice to the lovers column under the name of Beatrice Fairfax, tells in her autobiography "Ladies Now and Then," of one of the first letters she ever received. It was from a young man, with a fearful problem. His landlady was holding the fact that he had not paid his rent as a threat over his head to get him to marry her. The trouble was, the young man said, that the landlady was an old hag and he was really in love with her daughter. What should he do? Beatrice Fairfax advised him to get a job and pay his rent.

Sumner Welles' long awaited book—"The Time for Decision"—will be the Book-of-the-Month Club selection for August. The Club also announces that the next book dividend to its members will be a special edition of "Tales of Edgar Allan Poe," with an introduction by Hervey Allen and 39 wood engravings by Fritz Eichenberg.

Saving the Best in Fresh Vegetables

FEW FOODS are better to eat—and better for us—than fresh vegetables. And yet, it's surprising how easy it is to lose much of their food and flavor value in cooking. Here are a few hints on how to SAVE those goodnesses:

FRESH vegetables (picked from your garden or bought at the store) should be washed quickly and stored immediately—vitamins and minerals are lost in soaking.

MOST vegetables should be cooked rapidly in a small amount of water (but use plenty of water for greens and strong-flavored vegetables, and cook them uncovered).

SALT for flavor should be added when the cooking is started—do not use soda in cooking fresh vegetables.

KEEP vegetables whole for cooking, if you want to retain the best nutritional values.

SERVE them the minute they're cooked!

Vegetable Idea of the Week

CURRIED PEAS

2 cups fresh peas
2 tbsps. butter or margarine
2 tbsps. curry powder
1/2 tsp. salt
1/4 tsp. pepper

Shell peas and cook, uncovered, in rapidly boiling salted water to cover until tender, about 10 to 15 minutes. Drain. Add butter or margarine, curry powder, salt and pepper. Serves 4 to 6.

Recipe of the Week

OLD-FASHIONED WILTED LETTUCE

1/2 cup finely diced bacon
1 1/2 cups vinegar
2 tbsps. sugar
6 cups coarsely shredded leaf or head lettuce
2 hard-cooked eggs

Fry bacon in heavy frying pan until crisp, stirring occasionally; add vinegar and sugar; heat. Pour immediately over lettuce; cover with inverted skillet. Steam 5 minutes. Garnish with sliced hard-cooked eggs. Serves 6. (Note: combination of lettuce and remains is excellent.)

YOUR FAMILY NEEDS

Meat

FOR TIP-TOP HEALTH

With the removal of ration-point values on many meats, the housewife may again plan her meals around this all-important food. Present working and living conditions demand the utmost in healthful energy every day, and meat is its best source.

Remember — serve meats for the best health and come to FARMERS for the best meat buys.
